This leaves the ratios of catabolic: We know that Clomid and Nolvadex being very similar chemically are both ineffective with regard to reducing progesterone related gyno, so it is reasonable to assume that Clomid has little effect against progesterone levels. Typically, for a moderate-heavy cycle, the following dosages would be used: Smaller doses, more frequently during a cycle will give best overall results with least unwanted side effects. For example, if Dianabol, Sustanon and Winstrol were cycled, the time for administering Clomid should be 3 weeks post cycle, as Sustanon remains active in the body for the longest period of time. This may also explain the reason individuals often find post-deca recovery more difficult, as the progesterone presence is untouched by the Clomid. We do not promote the use of these substances and the information contained within this publication is not intended to persuade or encourage the use or possession of illegal substances. Administration would start as per the timescales outlined above and the duration would be identical to that of Clomid. Incidentally, this is the reason you may hear of people testing for growth hormone HGH with a pregnancy testing kit - If their HGH shows 'pregnant', they've been ripped-off with cheaper HCG - but we digress slightly. FSH stimulates the testes to produce more testosterone, and LH stimulates them to secrete more testosterone. Another generic name is Serophene. Clomid also works as an anti-oestrogen.
