They do this in part by creating lists of drugs that will or won't be paid for and then use their scale to negotiate lower costs. I asked AstraZeneca, the maker of Nexium, to explain the differences between Nexium and generic Nexium, and they told me simply that, well, one is branded and one is a generic, according to the FDA. YouTube Meanwhile, in Washington Pharmacists aren't the only ones concerned about the lack of transparency. Just look at Nexium's list price. But they also get paid by the drugmakers, who want their product on the list of approved drugs. You can't talk to the patients. The government's allegation was that AstraZeneca paid kickbacks to ensure that Medco kept Nexium on its formulary. And with that we should add that PBM clients have been getting mad at them lately. Well, I'll tell you what, I don't care. Outlaw drug commercials, outlaw co-pay coupons," said Miller. There's also a prescription version with twice the strength. Earlier this year, some of America's biggest employers including American Express, Macy's, and Coca-Cola created an organization called the Health Transformation Alliance with the aim of breaking with "existing marketplace practices that are costly, wasteful, and inefficient, all of which have resulted in employees paying higher premiums, copayments, and deductibles every year. It's the pharmacy benefit managers, or PBMs. To support the approval of branded medicines the FDA requires efficacy and safety data from in human, well-controlled clinical trials. The best determinant of a patient's out of pocket cost is their individual insurance plan and the respective formulary placement for a medicine. However, PUTT believes this is happening for most expensive brand drugs including insulin, inhalers and even expensive specialty medications. Unexpectedly, because most of the time patients don't know how much drugs cost insurers, they just know what they have to pay as a co-pay.
