I buy most of my personal care items at drugstores because I usually don't realize I need Q-tips or body wash until I'm completely out, and the drugstore is my closest option. Paper products Personally, I think toilet paper, paper towels, and napkins are expensive everywhere. I use a mixture of white vinegar and water to clean almost everything in my house, with one exception: With so many stores nationwide, it's no surprise that both chains are raking in sales. Healthcare Blue Book is a website that helps consumers get the best prices--because they're in the dark. Though the vast majority of our pharmacy customers use third party insurers to cover much of the cost of their prescription medication, we try to help lessen any and all out-of-pocket costs by offering generic forms of brand name medications, supporting all popular local discount card programs such as the Nation Association of Counties Prescription Discount Card Program , and matching competitor pricing on any script. We have also recently launched exclusive, industry-leading programs to offer low-cost options for important medications such as epinephrine and insulin:. But when it comes to the consumer, which drugstore is cheaper? Partnership for Prescription Assistance <https://www.ppa.org/>: Our prices are generally in-line with what other retail pharmacies charge. Information on Assistance Programs <https://www.ppa.org/assistance-programs/>: I don't have the time to run around to multiple pharmacies trying to find the best price.
