Any websites claiming to sell viagra should be avoided as they will not be regulated by the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain RPS and there may be concerns over quality, safety and effectiveness of the products they provide. The RPS has developed a logo that will appear on the first page of registered online pharmacies. Websites that sell prescription-only medicines are likely to be illegal in Great Britain. More seriously, they could be putting their health in danger. It is illegal to sell drugs without an appropriate licence and, in the UK, there are currently no internet pharmacists that are licensed to distribute viagra without a prescription. One recent survey of doctors by the medical newspaper GP found that one in four have treated patients for problems that were caused by internet-bought medicines. While internet pharmacies can make it easier to obtain prescribed drugs, they cannot replace necessary face-to-face consultations with clinical staff, as the RPS has emphasised. Unregulated websites cannot provide this important safety measure. Viagra-style drugs bought online may be counterfeit, contain unsafe levels of active ingredients or have other harmful substances added to them. To get permission, pharmacies must be approved by the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency and the Care Quality Commission, which regulate the provision of medicines and healthcare. If viagra is prescription only, why has Boots been given permission to sell it? Unscrupulous, illegal websites could still copy and display this logo so, in addition to this, the RPS recommends that users do the following: Medical professionals, including trained pharmacists, can apply for permission to issue certain drugs under the Patient Group Direction scheme. This is because viagra can potentially interact with common medicines, such as blood pressure and angina medication, or cause complications if used by people with certain health conditions. Are there legitimate internet pharmacies? What are the risks of buying viagra online? Check the registration status of the pharmacist.
