

can lpn refill prescription valium

[\[PDF\] generic lipitor greenstone](#)

[\[PDF\] cheap aldara cream generic](#)

[\[PDF\] oxycodone cost at walmart](#)

[\[PDF\] cost of generic zovirax](#)

[\[PDF\] fosinopril generic](#)

[\[PDF\] tadalafil price uk](#)

[\[PDF\] amoxicillin price cvs](#)

Jerry knows that with his training he is not allowed to refill a prescription medication. Making good ethical decisions is not always as easy as it seems. We as health care professionals need to understand our morals and ethical standards. If there are no more refills on the prescription bottle the only thing Jerry can do in this position is to schedule the patient for an appointment with the physician. The physician in this case has decided after speaking with the mother that this case is not one of abuse and therefore should not be reported. William to call in a refill, it would be okay to do so. He claims to be a close friend of Dr. Whether Jerry is refilling a prescription for The assessment was then presented to the physician; concern was expressed that the child may have been injured. Only a physician, clinical pharmacist, dentist, surgeon or a podiatrist, who has a license to practice, can give prescriptions to a patient. Ethics Case Study Everyday health care workers around the world are faced with tough decisions. Code of ethics is a list of principles that is intended to influence the actions of healthcare professionals within an organization. Sign Up Sign In. Which rules, obligations, and values should direct choices? In medical field there many precautions that must be taken in order to prevent a real problem, such as malpractice and law suit cases. An x-ray was ordered revealing fractures to both femurs. If Jerry is protected if a lawsuit is filled. The case study discussed an 8-month old child brought into the emergency department by the mother due to inconsolable crying. Nurse practitioners, psychologists, and physician assistants can often prescribe and order medications. Patient explained that he needs it right away because he is leaving to the airport in thirty minutes. Mar 1, - Jerry has only trained as a medical assistant and Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN), so he is not qualified to give prescriptions. The patient in this case has specified that Dr. Williams gives him a valium prescription as a friend and not as a doctor so if Jerry were to call in his refill, he would be exposing. Apr 28, - I hope you can help me. I will try to keep this brief: Jerry McCall, Dr. Williams's LPN and office assistant, is alone in the office at lunchtime, handling all the phone calls while the receptionist is out of the office. He receives a call from one of the doctor's patients who requests a prescription refill for Valium. Feb 11, - Can an office assistant who is an LPN call in a perscription for valium for on one of their patients when the doctor is not in. I am in Health Care Management class on ethics and I am doing a paper for Univ of Phoenix and task with doing a case study on this issue. It also ask if it would be different if the patient. The answer is a resounding YES! Nurse practitioners can prescribe medication, including controlled substances, in all 50 states and Washington DC. That said, the degree of independence with which they can prescribe drugs, medical devices (e.g., crutches) or medical services varies by state NP practice authority. Practice. What is a LPN? An LPN is a licensed practical nurse. An LPN can usually work in nursing homes and private nursing jobs. An LPN makes about half as much as A licensed doctor can prescribe Valium (diazepam) if he feels the medication is appropriate for you based on your medical problem, other medication you take. Meanwhile, a patient calls to the clinic and asks Jerry about the prescription refill for Valium. The patient states that it is Doctor's assistant position and LPN status of the Jerry does not grant the autonomy to take decisions related to the prescription of the drug to any patient in the absence of a doctor. Jerry has LPN status. He has received professional training as both a medical assistant and a LPN. A patient calls and says he must have a prescription refill for Valium, an antidepressant medication, Jerry's professional credentials will not allow him to issue prescriptions. What Every Practitioner Needs To Know About Controlled . A patient calls and says he must have a prescription refill for Valium and that the provider, a friend, calls in the medication prior to any flights. This type of Each individual state in the nation has different guidelines for the roles and duties an LPN can perform under the direction of a qualified health professional. Medical. Aug 12, - He has received professional training as both a medical assistant and a LPN. He is handling all the phone calls while the receptionist is at lunch. A patient calls and says he must have a prescription refill for Valium, an antidepressant medication, called in right away to his pharmacy, since he is leaving for. Jerry McCall is Dr. William's office assistant. He has received professional training as both a medical assistant and an LPN. He is handling all the phone calls while the receptionist is at lunch. A patient calls and says he must have a prescription refill for Valium, an antidepressant medication, called in right away to his.