That is why AstraZeneca's representative suggested over email that we ask the many PBMs running Medicare Part D plans why the drug costs so much emphasis added: There's also a prescription version with twice the strength. But they also get paid by the drugmakers, who want their product on the list of approved drugs. Perhaps the biggest threat of all: It's just the price of the drug before manufacturers do their deals with insurers and PBMs. It's the pharmacy benefit managers, or PBMs. Big PBMs also sometimes own pharmacies. I think the time has come for small pharmacies and large pharmacies to stand up to big PBMs and make a difference for our profession and in our patients lives. But that's exactly what they're doing, and it's driving some decades-old family businesses around the country to the brink. Thomson Reuters Doughnut holes The real danger of taking Nexium, at least for millions of Medicare Part D patients, is that it can put them in something called a doughnut hole. Either way, the pharmacy owners can barely say a word about their relationships with PBMs because of restrictions in their pharmacy provider agreements.
