The Newman-Goldfarb protocols were developed from information published in Dr. This unfortunate step was taken without considering the fact that the cardiac side effects occurred only when the drug was given intravenously to otherwise very sick patients. Correcting the latch may be all that is necessary to change a situation of "not enough milk" to one of "plenty of milk" Also see the video clips on our website. The manufacturer states in its literature that chronic treatment with domperidone in rodents has resulted in increased numbers of breast tumours in the rodents. However, our clinical experience has been that side effects in the mother are extremely uncommon, except for increasing milk supply. It should be used only in conjunction with fixing all other factors that may result in insufficient milk supply. You can take the domperidone about every 8 hours, when it is convenient there is no need to wake up to keep to an 8 hour schedule it does not make a real difference. However, there are several studies that show that it works to increase milk production and that it is a relatively safe drug. A few minutes of hand expression after the feedings may be very effective to increase the milk supply. It is usual when breastfeeding not to have menstrual periods for many months.
