Women in Public Service. Office of the Spokesperson. The US Department of State press advisory follows: During this international exchange, these international women in public service will collaborate with their American counterparts on ways in which to bridge barriers facing women in public service and empower a new generation of young women. Site Design by Eric V. The women will identify mentoring and training needs, as well as how to establish and sustain an international network of leaders and generate new insights on women's political leadership roles. The Project will identify and educate a new generation of women committed to public service, create an infrastructure of support and mentoring, and help enable more women to enter public service and political leadership. The forum will explore such issues as the skills needed for successful public servants in the 21st century and how to achieve the 50 percent mark for women in public service by The program is focused on building a generation of women leaders who will invest in their countries and communities, provide leadership in their governments, and change the way global solutions are forged.
