They believe that the slices that the PBMs are taking only inflate the ultimate cost of prescriptions drugs. A number of people in Congress have grown tired of the PBMs and are calling for more transparency in their dealings. They wrote a letter to the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services CMS warning of predatory pricing driving small pharmacies out of business. I take the over-the-counter Nexium 24HR, which is a 20 mg dose rather than the 40 mg prescription. PBMs are being sued by some customers for double dealing, and they're now also starting to draw the attention of Congress. And, because some of their fees are pegged to the drug's price, the PBMs can actually profit from higher prices too. I think the time has come for small pharmacies and large pharmacies to stand up to big PBMs and make a difference for our profession and in our patients lives. If that's it, then that's it. For years they've been watching their customers struggle to pay for prescription drugs, even when they have generic or over-the-counter alternatives. Thomson Reuters Doughnut holes The real danger of taking Nexium, at least for millions of Medicare Part D patients, is that it can put them in something called a doughnut hole.
