Codeine i have done to death in Australia. Do a few spanish lessons in Bolivia, it's cheap and will help you heaps in your travels. The weed is usually straight, but the coke is often a rip-off. Best bet would be to find a low-key pharmacy NOT in a big city. Emergency numbers, hospitals and pharmacies Health insurance: I even got to spin a set. From comprehensive inpatient and outpatient treatment to medical evacuation, their low-cost plans have you covered. A mg bottle of codeine was cheaper than a starbucks latte. Anyways, when I went to the pharmacy the clerk was confused about the script, so she asked if I wanted 3 pills or 3 cases of pills, I was like, 3 cases, of course, so I got 2mg Ativan and 1mg Ativan down there. You can get totally off your ass with good coke, but bad just brings you down. Glad i had mah runnin shoes on. If you like clubbing, its great. Many medicines that you may be able to buy over the counter in your own country, such as antibiotics, must be prescribed by a doctor in Germany. In cities like Cusco you will see shaman shops and posters advertising ayauashca and san pedro experiences. You can still get tramadol though OTC.Ok, so no matter what I do I can't sleep in Korea (I'm a bit of a newbie and it's taking me long to adjust to the time difference, not to mention the roaches in my apartment), and someone told me you can buy Valium OTC here. Is this true? That'd knock me right out at night for sure! Is there a list of medicines anywhere that lists what's outright banned, what's restricted/acceptable with permission, and what's good to go? I've been poking around on Korea's customs and FDA sites to find information. I saw that some meds may be ok with permission, but I can't find how to apply, or how.
