Find out when you're most fertile with our ovulation calculator. I did and am now delayed by yet another 3 months to get clomid. Where did you get it? Would anyone take the risk of buying Clomid online? I've read mainly on here that clomid is used to treat luteal phase defect so if I am unsuccessful at the fertility clinic I'm hoping to source clomid some other way. As far as I know you can get clomid on the NHS even if you already have DC, so why not wait and see what the specialist says? I'd get on to a private clinic and get some quotes. I would suggest that unless the fertility specialist says you need clomid it would be a pretty stupid thing to just buy it off the Internet and medicate yourself, as it can have very serious side effects. Reply Follow Unfollow Continues below ad. I've only been TTC since just before Christmas which I know isn't that long in the grand scheme of things- but knowing I have a problem with my luteal phase defect I went to the GP to get the ball rolling. Don't think I'd risk buying it on line and if you have already had children it could be DH with the problem. I considered doing this with metformin. My friend bought clomid online, (she had been trying for 20 months) she got pregnant but had all sorts of complications and sadly lost her little one. clomid and metformin will help, well metformin haven't helped what so ever!!
